In the heart of Bali's Canggu, our visionary architectural project blends modern elegance with Balinese aesthetics. Embracing sustainable design, the structure harmoniously integrates into the lush surroundings, offering a unique and tranquil living experience inspired by the island's vibrant cultural tapestry.

THE CALA SAONA BY BIOMBO ARCHITECTS

Just 800m from the shore of Bali, the "island of gods," stands a unique residential marvel designed by the lead Architects of Biombo Architects, Beatriz Alejandre and Nacho Atienza. Her name is Cala Blanca. Cala Blanca, is a 4 en-suite bedroom house packed in a 400m2 plot. The challenge of this project, was designing this house to maximize the space so it would look bigger than it is. The layout has been carefully thought to conquer and give use to all small spaces and corners of the plot. The hole house has been designed with meticulously attention to detail.

Cala Blanca sits in a compound of 4 villas, side by side with Cala Bona and Cala Bassa, another 2 sister villas with similar concept as Cala Blanca. To maximize the space, a sole parking was designed for all the villas, with a one of a kind entrance and access corridor, one of the singularities of this special compound. As you walk into the corridor, you are driven to the villas by a zigzag walkway, surrounded by lush green, natural stone, and roofs kissing above you. Also, one of the success of the compound design is the privacy of the villas between each other. As soon as you access to the villa, you are dropped in the living area, with a high sloped timber ceiling that covers kitchen, living room and dining room as part of the same space. In this area, you can already be part of already one of our signature concepts: bringing the nature inside the house. Palm trees and plants all around the sunken sofa area and kitchen, are part of the house as is the furniture, or the people. Nature is a tonic for physical well-being. It reduces blood pressure, stabilizes heart rate, and decreases the production of stress hormones. After living with this concept in our own house for the last 7 years, we believe everyday more and more that this is something that we want as part of our designs. Also another elements about these biophilic homes are the seek for natural light and ventilation, use of natural materials such as timber, natural stone, etc, which brings naturally a feeling of mental and physical comfort.
